

Workshop

Wednesday, April 30th, 2014

10 :00 – 12 :00

HEC Montréal, Room Société canadienne des postes (Yellow)
3000 Chemin Côte Ste-Catherine

Social innovations and Business Ethics in Management Research

This workshop will offer an opportunity to explore the possibilities of bridging research (and practice) on social innovation and business ethics. The conversation will engage members of the CRISES (research group on social innovations) and professors and doctoral students from the TADA (TransAtlantic Doctoral Academy on Corporate responsibility).

About the TADA

The TADA (TransAtlantic Doctoral Academy on Corporate responsibility) is a doctoral consortium allowing 15 selected PhD students from Germany, Switzerland, Canada and the U.K. to meet twice a year for an intensive research- and practice-oriented program. The TADA is co-directed by three professors in Business Ethics: Thomas Beschorner (Switzerland), Emmanuel Raufflet (Canada) and Matthias Schmidt (Germany).

Free entrance – All are welcome

Contact : crises-hec@hec.ca